Of Interest to Contractors.

A decision of interest to contractors has just been handed down by the court of common pleas. New Haven. In the case in question the owner of a house under construction paid the contractor a sum of money on his contract before the date specified in his agreement, and the court ruled that a sum of money paid on a contract before the date set in the contract for payment was in bad faith, unless all time sub-contractors were notified five days before the money was paid over. The owner was obliged to pay the amount a second time.—Commercial Record.

PARK CHURCH CHOIR. er of Changes Will Be Made or WATER SHOULD BE PUMPED A number of changes are due for the Park Congregational church choin on April first, which will include a new organist, also, as George A. Kies has sent in his resignation to tak ef-fect then, after having held the posi-tion for many years. The choir will include Mrs. A. E. Story, soprano; Miss Eunice Park, of Stafford Springs, contralto; Eugene.B. Seamens of Mystic, bass, and Eben Learned, tenor and choir director.

On Thursday evening Orman E. Ryther arrived here for a stay of a few days, and in speaking of the water question, on which he spoke publicly a few months ago, said that he believed that the water of Trading Cove brook should be pumped and pumped now, as better water will be secured now than later. He could see no reason for a delay.

He is here in the interests of the State Temperance union and states he is working for the restricting the sadoons to 1 for every 1,000 people. This with the increasing of the license fee to $1,000 he thinks will be an ideal method of handling the matter. At South Norwalk every time that William Peters built a fire in his newly acquired home bees would issue from every nook and cranny and drive the family out. They would take shelter in a neighbor's house and wait a day or two, but each fire brought a reappearance of the bees and the family would be stung to distraction. would be stung to distraction.

It was finally discovered that the bees came up the hot air pipes from the heater. This led to the discovery that a swarm of bees was housed in the air box above the firepit of the furnace. They went in through a little crack and it was necessary to tear the furnace to pieces to get the bee nest out. The bee expert found nearly a hundred pounds of the best clover honey, almost enough to pay for a new furnace. The house had been unoccupied for five years before Peters purchased it and the bees had lived in the furnace all that time, accumulating honey. In the court of common pleas on Thursday the case of W. F. Gates vs. Holden Arnold was finished. In about a half hour after the arguments were completed Thursday morning the case went to the jury, and after deliberating upon it for an hour and three-quarters a verdict was returned for the plaintiff to recover $40, which also decides the ownership of teh land. It is said an appeal may be taken.

The suit of James Downing & Co. vs. Colvin Wilcox, a Voluntown case, was next taken up. This is a suit for $150, it being claimed that the plaintiffs had to pay $150 for cutting timber on the land of William Gardner, when Mr. Wilcox said that the timber was on his land, it having been bought from him. The plaintiffs settled the judgment of the court and asked Mr. Wilcox to help out on it, and he refused and suit was brought. The case went over until next Tuesday, but court was adjourned to come in at New London next Monday.
